The case of Mag Baggess charged with keeping a disorderly house and which was appealed from the city court a month ago, was on trial in the county court this morning. A large number of witnesses testified and the court room was crowded to its utmost capacity all the forenoon.

Notwithstanding the rapidly increasing number of candidates for various city offices, particularly of that Chief of Police, the municipal campaign is unusually quiet, and nothing but good feeling seems to prevail among the legions of candidates. Much speculation is engaged in on the streets, as to this or that candidate's chances for success; his qualifications, record, &c., and a great deal of interest is manifested. Excitement however has not begun to show itself yet.

The examining trial of Mr. W. E. Williams, charged with the murder of Harry Gibson, was concluded late yesterday evening. The testimony of Mr. W. D. Lacy, president of the Geyser Ice company, occupied almost the entire day. Ben Williams, Sidney Goldsmith, B. W. Roscoe and several other witnesses were examined, and the case submitted without argument. The court announced it a bailable case and fixed the amount at $2,000. The bond was immediately given and Mr. Williams was released, and is now engaged in his duties as bookkeeper of the Geyser Ice company.

Institutions like the City Savings Bank, keep the people's money at home, and keep it at work. It is never idle. The Texas Savings Loan Association and the City Savings Bank keep about fifty carpenters at work all the time. They are proud of their tin bucket brigade of city builders. And the work goes on forever. What becomes of your money used to buy stock in corporations in other cities? Take stock in home institutions—in the City Savings Bank. This is the last chance you will ever have to get stock in the City Savings Bank. The stock books will be closed forever on the first of March. See Mayfield at once.
